Alasdair Gray is a Glasgow writer and artist, most famous for his novel Lanark (1981): 'if a city hasn't been used by an artist, not even the inhabitants live there imaginatively' remarks one of the characters, but Gray imagined and drew the city into its being in the late 20th century. His poetry has a similarly questioning, subversive tone but is also

I realize now that, for Alasdair Gray, the last thing on earth he wanted to achieve in Lanark was to write, and be hailed for writing, 'a minor classic of the literature of adolescence.' As we have since come to know that was indeed what he had done first - Thaw's story was written initially and discretely and is a re-imagining of a ...
